ICIST
2019

25th International Conference on
Information and Software Technologies

October 10th – 12th, 2019,
Vilnius, Lithuania

SCOPE

Two very important trends are the digital era and the organizational shift towards projects. We are starting to live in a projected and digitalized world. The adaptation of organizations (e.g. companies, but also Higher Education Institutions - HEI), processes, methods & tools, and of technologies are forcing a change process with a tremendous pace on people, companies and nations. In addition to the technical, economic and socio-economic tasks, the digital transformation also requires new forms of management. Due to disruptive elements and jump innovations, traditional forms of organization are often overstrained. Therefore, the working form of digital transformation is the project. The session aims to bring together computer scientists, digital transformation experts and engineers from related fields, both from academia and industry.
